

Strengthening health system leadership for better governance: what does it take?

<http://bit.ly/HealthSystemLeadership>

To achieve health system transformation that supports health outcome improvement requires multi-level personal as well as distributed leadership. Yet the study of leadership is a relatively neglected area.

The papers in this supplement cover leadership practice at multi-health systems levels as well as leadership capacity development and contribute to the relatively limited literature on health systems leadership in low- and middle income countries.
