10.15-10.30am Welcome and introduction, Dr Laurence Carmichael, ESRC Seminar Series Project Manager, UWE, Bristol.

10.30am-12pm Morning session:
The morning session will compare public health and planning evidence and the degree to which health evidence is compatible with and useful to planning practice.

Chair: Dr David Sweeting, Senior Lecturer in Urban Studies, University of Bristol, Bristol.

An evidence base masterclass session run by three experts with a dual academic/practice background will introduce and compare public health and planning evidence:

- Dr Adrian Davis, Public Health and Transport Planning Specialist, Bristol City Council.
- Lynn Gibbons, Specialty Registrar in Public Health and Public Health Practitioner in Residence, WHO Collaborating Centre for Healthy Urban Environments, UWE, Bristol.
- Adam Sheppard, Senior Lecturer in Planning, UWE, Bristol.

12-12.45pm Lunch.

12.45-4.30pm Afternoon session:
The afternoon session will consider how research should support the integration of health and planning, with an exploration of mechanisms to integrate health evidence into planning.

12.45-2:15pm Presentations: The nature of evidence for “healthy planning”.

Chair: Victoria Pinoncely, Research Officer, Royal Town Planning Institute.

- Dr Karen Lock, Clinical Reader in Public Health, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine.
- Dr Marleen Bekker, Research Fellow Governance and Innovation in Social Services, Public Administration and Political Science, Radboud University Nijmegen, The Netherlands.

The presentation will be followed by a panel discussion with Dr Karen Lock, Dr Marleen Bekker, Dr Adrian Davis, Lynn Gibbons and Adam Sheppard: What are the tensions in planning practice? How do we ensure health research informs urban planning policy? How can research help tackle health inequalities?

2:15-2.45pm Tea break.

2.45-4.30pm Presentations: The integration of public health and planning in Australia and the United Kingdom. Chair: Professor Hugh Barton, Emeritus Professor of Planning, Health and Sustainability, UWE, Bristol.
